School As It Is

The main entrance to our school is highlighted by large glass doors, with a black panther guarding the entrance.

A long view of our treasured school and the new library addition, brings back memories of days gone by.

At a delicious banquet prepared by the Pep Club girls, the football team, managers, and coaches were honored along with the school board and faculty members. In the background Coach Robison is giving a short talk on sportsmanship.

"Learn by Doing" seems to fit this picture, as the Junior Class members apply their own make-up in preparation for the Junior Play "The Able Miss Cain."

From the outside to the inside of C.H.S. a variety of activities take place. These activities are sponsored by the different organizations of the student body.

Another new addition is a new activity bus, on which the basketball boys are preparing to leave for a trip.

Between classes the halls are a mad rush with students hurrying to their lockers to pick up books for the next class.

The faculty meets once a week to discuss the various problems of the school, arrange for changes in the program of activity, and plan for coming events.

At a sock hop sponsored by the Rambouillet Staff the outstanding personalities of C.H.S. were announced.

A Day

From classes with books, test tubes and colors that bubbled above gas burners, came the noises of bounding physics and chemistry apparatus that traveled down the hall to the Home Economics room. Thread and cloth merged together and mixed with the words of the Rambouillet, while student life flapped on the floor of Cokeville High School all week.

Teachers watched from their doors the students on their way to their classes. Halls were highways to the Ag building and the gym. Scale rules, graph paper, brains and numbers cover views of mechanical drawing.

With heavy boots they walked in the snow through the trees, remembering the laughter faded in the quietness of time, hating to leave the color and noise of youthful life--a life of sun and snow, growing pains and achievement. Footprints walk down steps, leaving, but not forgetting.

A variety of classes under the instruction of skilled and trained teachers if offered to the students of C.H.S. These classes are very educational to ambitious students and help in building character for all.

From the amateur musician, and untrained voice, Mr. Kingdon molded the musical talent which typify Cokeville High School. As the head of the music department he gave enjoyment to all.

Basketball, baseball, volleyball, calisthenics, and relays were the major concern of the physical education department while the health classes concentrated on functions of the human body.

Tactfully and patiently Mr. Wagstaff waits unceasingly to see that his students advanced in their understanding and use of the English language.

The words NATO, KHRUSHCHEV, and the UNITED NATIONS were heard coming from the history room as students prepared themselves to accept the responsibilities of citizenship in our great United States.

Always in Action

Una Dayton, Adeline Freeman

Striking a busy pose wasn't necessary for the cooks. These diligent workers capably planned and prepared all the lunches for the students of C.H.S.

Overburdened by the enrollment of C.H.S. the custodians did an excellent job of keeping the halls and class rooms from litter strewn by a few careless students.

Through the many entrances of C.H.S. come its most outstanding personalities. These personalities were chosen from the four upper grades. With all of them being represented, they are looked up to and admired by their classmates.

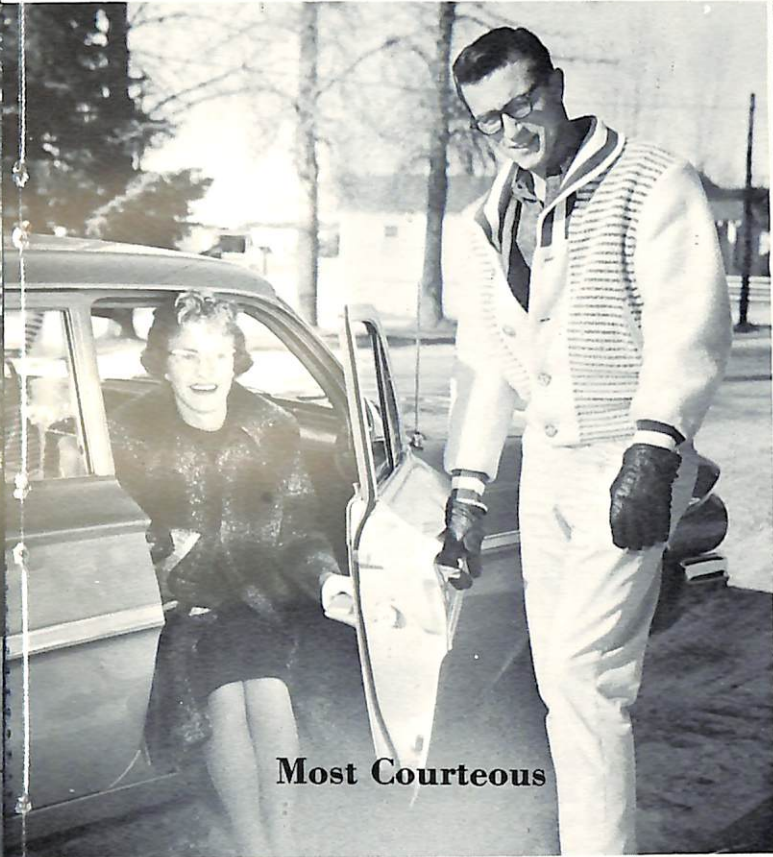

The Rambouillet staff, as sponsor of the poll of top personalities, held the election during a noon hour. All grades, junior high through senior high, were allowed to vote.

The winners of these high honors were elected by popular vote of the student body.

With the consent of the senior class the year-book staff was able to use the auditorium, very beautifully decorated with their senior ball decorations, for a sock hop.

At this sock hop these superlatives were announced during the intermission and were presented with pennants identifying their personality award.

These students excel not only as leaders in many organizations, but in school work as well.

They will hold these honors until next year when new ones will be elected.

Rambouillet Staff Works to Meet Deadlines

After receiving the All-State Yearbook Award for two years, in Division III, the Rambouillet staff with the help of Mrs. Thatcher, advisor, worked extra hard to put out a better yearbook.

Many long hard hours were spent selling Ads, taking pictures, copy-writing, typing, and laying out pages to meet deadlines.

Student Council: J. R. Thornock--Sophomore class; Eugene Wagstaff--Eighth grade; Judy Walter--Junior class; Linda Nate--Seventh grade; Allan Birch--Senior class; Brenda Holden--Freshman class.

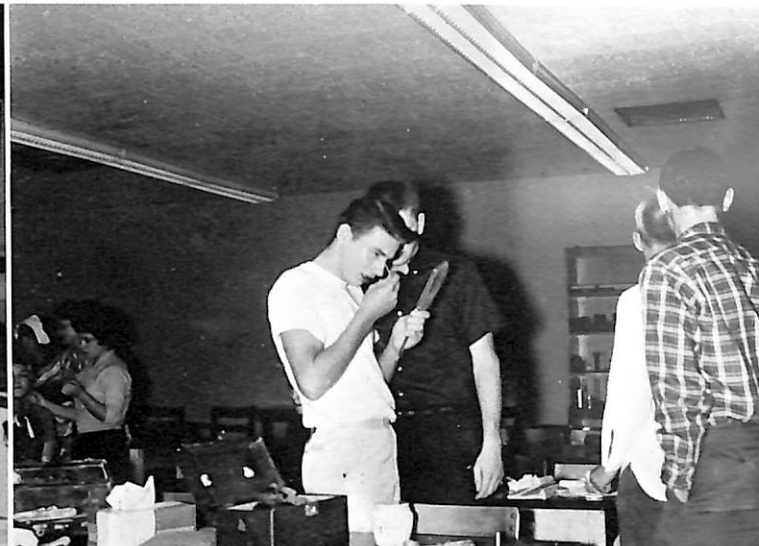

Always in action, the student council strives for new and better leadership. By representing the pupils, the class spokesmen have ironed out many problems confronting the school. Working in this council are representatives from each class throughout high school and junior high.

This year the school constitution was brought up to date and made more useful. It provides for a student court which is being studied by a committee appointed by the Student Body President, Nolan Lloyd. Also, regular meetings of the student body are to be held every six weeks to discuss problems in the school.

Activities of C. H. S.

During the year the student body sponsored various activities. The students of C.H.S. heartily endorsed these events and took part in them. Student Body President, Nolan Lloyd (always hungry), proved very efficient and genial. Vice president, John Igo carried his share of the responsibilities, along with his happy smiling face. Some of these activities were matinee dances, picture shows, pep rallies, lyceums, Christmas party, student body elections and homecoming.

Future Homemakers of America Participate in Various Activities

Throughout the year the Cokeville FHA Chapter held a variety of activities. The goals for each month were attained through the following activities.

The FHA Chapter played the role of hostess at the District FHA Meeting at Cokeville High School. Two members, Louise Walton, District Chairman, and Kathleen Petersen, District Song Leader, took main parts on the program.

To fill the November goal, all the members in the club brought their old toys and repaired them; the toys were then sent to a children's home.

Old neckties were collected from the community and sent to Thermopolis, Wyoming, where they were made into dolls for the enjoyment of crippled children.

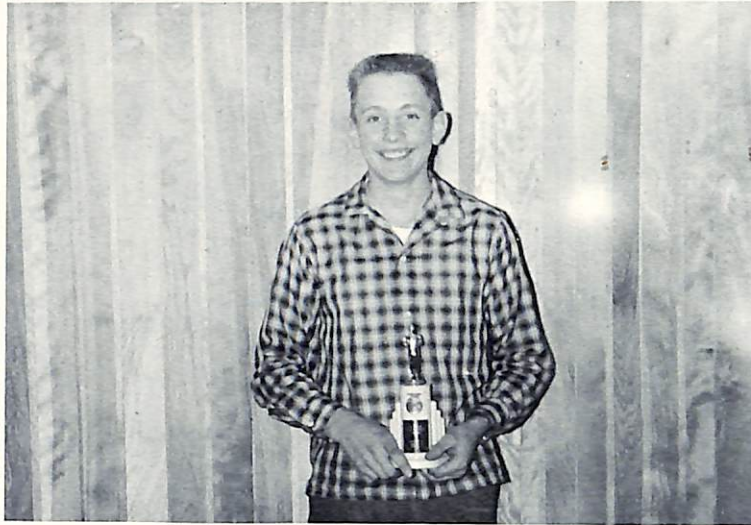

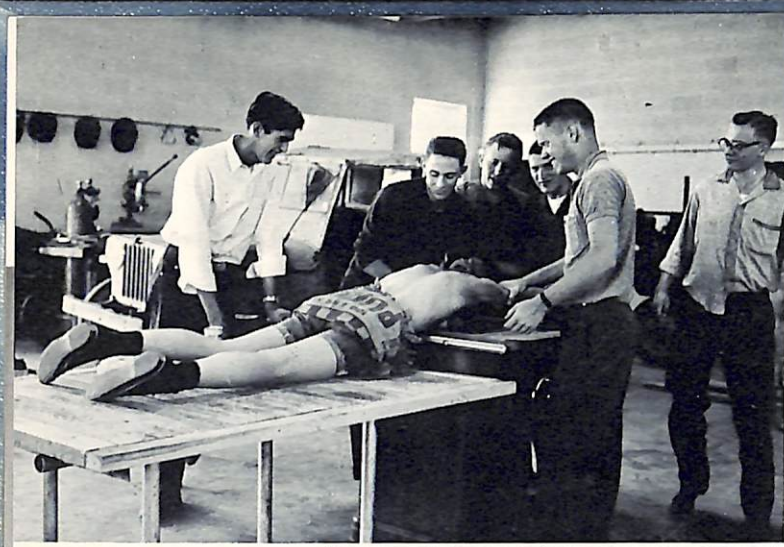

In the fall a formal initiation for the Freshmen was given by the upperclassmen. Later during the year, in February, both Sophomores and Freshmen were initiated to the chapter at a slumber party in the gymnasium.

A Ma and Pa night and Foreign Foods dinner and a lecture by Mrs. Carl Robinson from Afton, Wyoming, were the highlights of the year.

Learning to Do Doing to Learn Earning to Live Living to Serve

Under the guidance of Mr. Despain, the advisor, the FFA chapter had a very successful year in its many activities.

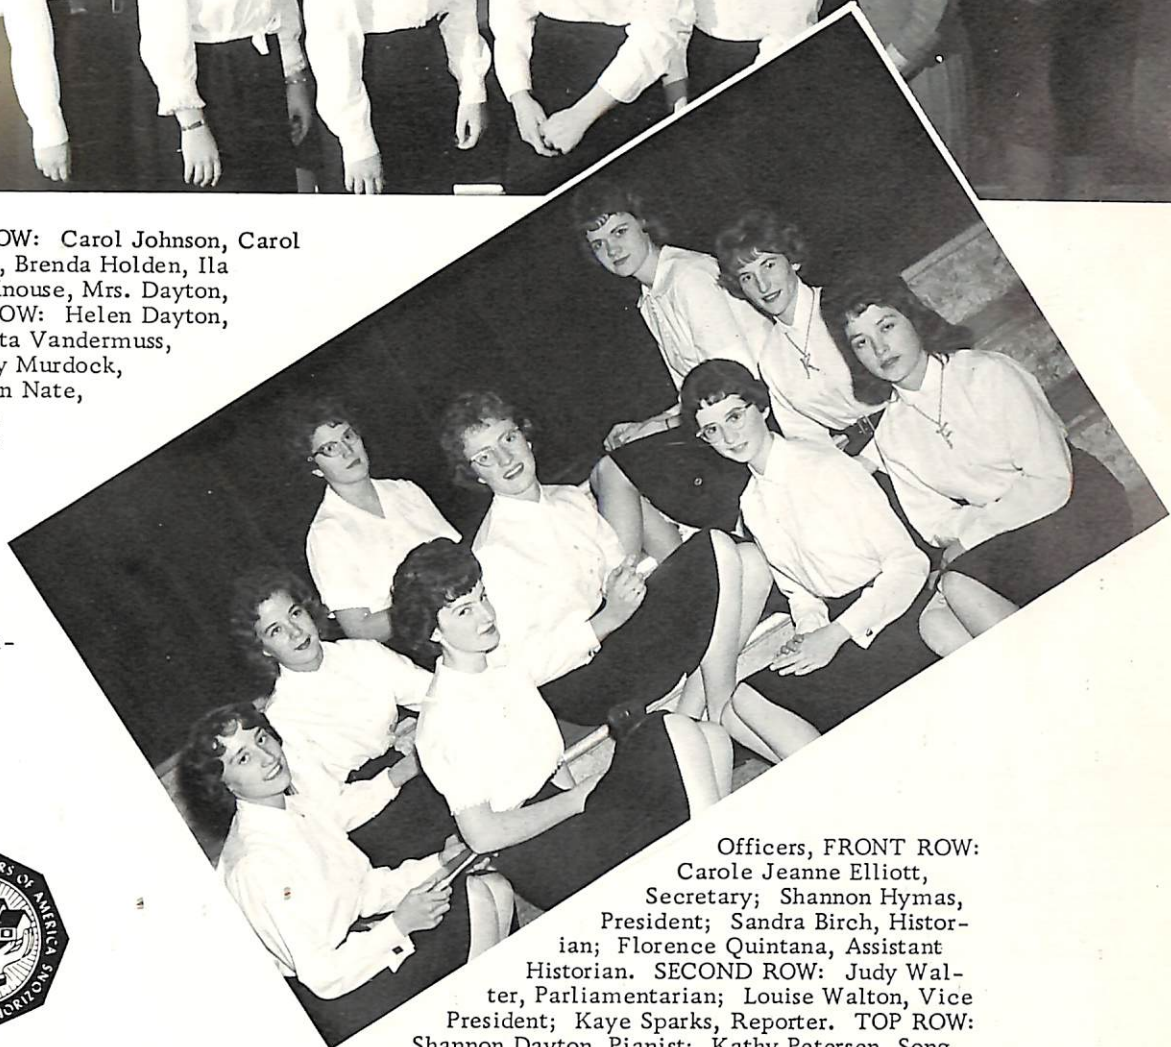

During the first part of the year the upperclassmen initiated the Freshmen into the Chapter and held their annual speaking contest. Clayton Pope, a chapter member, took first in chapter and district and third in regional.

On March 29th a banquet was given in honor of their parents where many of the members received awards. Mr. George Thatcher was given the Honorary Chapter Farmer Degree award, and Mike Etchevery received the outstanding senior award.

Wonders of Science and Art of Teaching

What Are The Purposes Of FTA Clubs?

To interest good students in becoming teachers.

To explore the teaching field, including the opportunities and the many areas of the teaching profession.

To develop the beginnings of professional attitudes.

To set up a program for guidance in preprofessional service and development.

To provide an opportunity to work with children so the members may realize potential satisfaction in teaching.

To cultivate qualities of leadership, character, and scholarship among students.

To study the lives of great teachers. To bring to pupils greater understanding of the value of education in American society.

Science: Looking through a microscope, peering into a test tube, or working with a chemical formula, science students worked diligently to formulate a better world for tomorrow. In their minds is installed the need for dedicated men in this field.

Latin and Library Broaden Knowledge of Students

Hic, haec, hoc!
No, that isn't a bilious attack but a Latin pronoun which is about to be declined. Once the basic subject in the school curriculum, Latin seems now to be making a comeback; and students are finding that it is neither dull or useless.

Band and Chorus —

Music, like the spoken word, can express: love, hate, joy, and sorrow. This combination of moods, spoken words, and music shows effectively the charms of music.

The high school band, under the direction of Mr. Douglas Kingdon, is one of the most active organizations in the school.

This year the band performed in three band concerts and a spring music festival. Plus two clinics, one at Jackson in the fall, and one at Evanston in the spring, were held in which selected members of the band participated.

Another function of the band was to add sparkle and spirit to football and basketball games at which the pep band was always on hand.

Instruments of Music

Chorus, the last class of the day, has always been a relaxer class, but yet one in which much can be gained and learned.

The choral director, Mr. Kingdon, helps each member to become well acquainted with the principals of choral work.

The chorus, as well as the band participated in the concerts, the main musical events of the year, the spring and fall clinics, and the spring music festival.

BACK ROW: Stephen Teichert, Gerald Perkins, Neil Cornia, Glen Birch, J. R. The pep band this year was indeed another group of outstanding students. It gave its whole-hearted support to the Panthers this year by playing in all their pep assemblies and at all the home football and basketball games.

For years this organization of student musicians has advanced, in both number and quality and has developed into an outstanding group.

An organization composed of varsity letter winners in C.H.S. is the "C" club. It is made up of boys who have earned letters and who are interested in sports. Some of the "C" club activities included during the year were the selling of programs at games, the letterman's banquet, and their annual dance. The money raised from club projects bought the Seniors of '61 their letter jackets.

Cheerleaders and Pantherettes Add Colors and Support the Athletic Events

Decked out in their gay and colorful costumes are the varsity cheerleaders of C.H.S. With the help of the Pep Club they lead the team on to victory with peppy yells.

This year the organization of Pantherettes adopted simple costumes of black corduroy, off-set by a colorful orange scarf placed on the left side of the skirt.

This enthusiastic Pep Club gave their whole-hearted support to the Panthers and coaches.

The rigorous training, never-ending practice, and feeling of unity displayed by members of Cokeville High School's football team enabled them to speed through the season with an excellent record.

Playing through one of its toughest schedules in years, the Cokeville Panthers met all of the strong teams of the conference during the season.

The Panthers won six of their eight games, but lost to both the Superior Dragons and the Big Piney Punchers. A number of players will write their names in varsity football history at Cokeville High School.

Memories to Remember

To the halls which open to us their doors of knowledge and truth that we may partake of the treasures stored within . . .

To the class rooms which bear witness of the sorrows and joys necessary in building the personalities of today's generation . . .

To the warm clasp of hands as they reach out in understanding and love, binding together the bonds of fervent friendship . . .

All this and more is left behind, hoping that those yet to follow will be worthy of the tradition of standards created in the halls of Cokeville High.

This year the Cokeville High School received a National Honor Society Charter. To be a member of this society you must have character, leadership, and scholarship.

Plan for the Future

The various activities of the Seniors came fast and furious making it a very busy year. To start out with, after election of officers, the Senior Ball was held and they decorated it to the theme of "Pink Champagne."

"Don't Take My Penny" the Class Play was presented February 22, and after that things just seemed to pile up as Senior Night, class parties, the many other activities and finally the long awaited nights of Baccalaureate and Graduation came.

Seniors Enjoy Whirlwind Year

Highlighting their last and most important year, the seniors presented and participated in many activities.

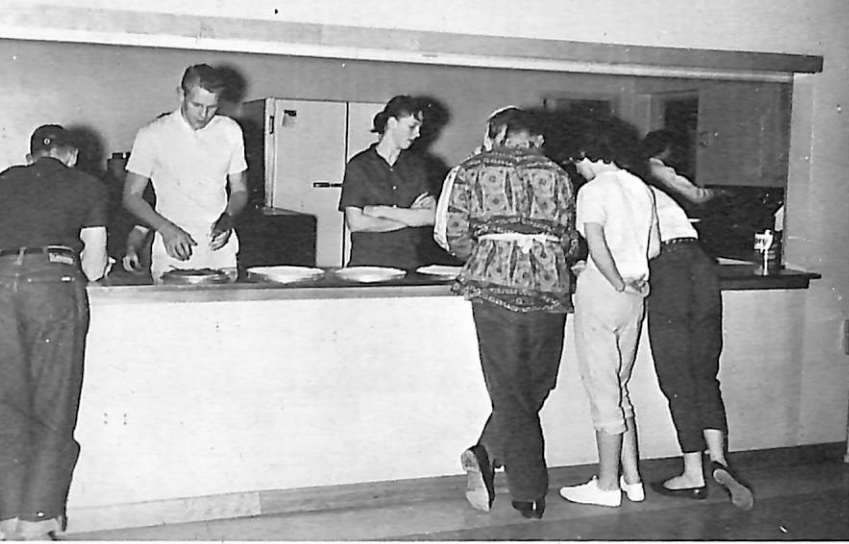

Beginning their round of whirlwind activities, the Class of '61 held their very successful Senior Ball. The hall was beautifully decorated with cellophane and balloons to the theme of "Pink Champagne."

Their next on-coming event was the annual senior play "Don't Take My Penny." Much work and much fun went into the choosing and the presenting of this play.

As the year moved towards its end, the seniors prepared for Graduation week. Sunday, Monday 21, was the annual Baccalaureate service. The following Monday, the seniors presented their last school performance at Senior Night. The theme of their program was "The Roaring Twenties." It was very successful with a large crowd in attendance.

The last big step in their high school career was taken at Commencement exercises, Wednesday, May 24.

The valedictory and salutatory addresses were given by Eugene Bagley and Nolan Lloyd respectively.

As the Juniors near the end of their third high school year, they begin to plan for what the future has in store. With the Senior and final year of school fastly approaching they are thinking of scholarships, Universities, vocational schools or maybe jobs.

This has been an exciting year for the Juniors with so many highlights. The Junior Play, "The Able Miss Cain" was presented for the entertainment of the public on January 25. All of the class participated in this comedy in one way or another.

Other highlights of this very eventful year were choosing class rings, class parties, the Junior Prom and the Junior-Senior Banquet.

Important Events of the Juniors Career

The Junior Class, supervised by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Birch, filled the year with many successful activities; these included a play, a dance, a banquet, and class parties.

Although struggling to find time to practice, the Juniors, for their own enjoyment and experience and for the entertainment of the public; presented the annual Junior play. With an exciting plot and hilarious moments, "The Able Miss Cain" was enjoyed by all.

April 7 was a night that will be remembered by the class of '62 for years to come, for this was the night of the Junior Prom. The hall was decorated beautifully in different shades of blue to the theme "Beyond the Sea." As the evening moved along, a large crowd awaited the crowning of the king and queen and her attendants. For these honors the Junior class chose Terry Etcheverry as King, Shannon Dayton as Queen, and Carole Jean Elliott as the class attendant. The other classes--Freshman, Sophomore, and Senior--respectively chose Helen Dayton, Sandra Birch, and Marilyn Birch.

In the decorated auditorium on the Monday night following the dance, the Juniors gave a banquet honoring the Seniors.

The Sophomores of '64 came forth with a class organization of unusual ability, and enthusiasm this year. They have been a very active class with its members participating in many of the various school functions. As they look forward to their Junior year of High School they are very well prepared, for they have gained experience through their activities and school work.

Sophomores Show a Field of Activities

Courses of study as well as different types of activities combined in making the Sophomores second year of high school a big success.

With its many outstanding leaders, the students of this class excelled in leadership in many outside activities along with their own.

One of their main events, never to be forgotten, was their Sophomore Hop on October 21st. They chose the theme of "Tumble Weeds" and used the colors, gold and brown, to decorate the auditorium. At the main end of the hall was a sunset to characterize their theme.

Living every moment to its fullest, this class enjoyed being together and participating in class parties.

Mr. Despain and Mrs. Dayton, Freshman Class Advisors, receiving tokens of appreciation.

Freshman Class Works Together

The Freshman Class in conference, with President Somsen presiding.

The class of 1964 is mighty proud of the activities it sponsored this year. Its annual dance, the Freshman Frolic, was decorated in contrasting colors to the theme of "Buttons and Bows." It drew a large crowd and was a successful dance.

With only three more struggling years ahead of them before reaching the desired goal--graduation, the Freshman Class has promising ideas for their future interests in activities.
